Lightning's Doings

Three Buildings Fired

The electrical storm that visited this section this evening was one of the most severe that has been experienced for some time.
The lightning was particularly vivid and disastrous in its effects.
As far as we can learn no life has been lost, although it would have been no surprise had it been the case. The storm was preceded by one of the hottest days on record in this part of Alberta, the thermometer registering at one time 103 in the shade and from 110 to 120 in the sun, and it will be a wonder if there are no case of sun-stroke recorded.
It was certainly "A hot time in our town." All vegetation was in danger of being literally burnt up.

The deluge of rain that accompanied the electrical storm, although coming late, cannot help but do an immense amount of good to the crops and pasture —both of which were sadly in need of rain, and were becoming a very serious problem.

When the lightning was at it severest, soon after a very vivid flash, which shot out from the main streak and scatter like so many fiery snakes, a large building near Cereal, reported to be G. A. McDonald's barn, suddenly burst into flame, having presumably been struck by lightning.

About the same time a sudden blaze was noticed some six or seven miles to the south of Chinook. From the direction the fire seemed to centre between the Neff and McLaughlin farms.
A report has come in that it is the Laughlin school-house.

Yet a third very large fire was noticed a few miles west of the town about the same time as the other two, supposed to have been another large barn. Up to the time of going to press we have not been able ascertained the name of the owner.

In all three cases the loss will be heavy, and if not insured the loss will be doubly hard because of the poor crops this year.

"Get your goat at once; $10, $15, $20," says a new head.

It has cost some people very much less to "get their goat."

Mrs Gale says Calgary's city market should deal in fish

Fish caught in a Gale, perhaps

You have several Hundred Dollars Worth of Machinery

You probably leave those machines outside in the fields or in the barn-yard when they are not in use.

The steel and iron parts rust and the wood and canvas parts rot quickly, making expensive repairs necessary every year, until the machines are weather-killed.

Isn't that about what is happening on your farm year after year? Your binders last perhaps 3 to 5 years. They should last 10 to 15 years.

Plows, discs, drills, mowers, rakes, etc. are all weather-killed long before they are worn out by work.

This makes an annual loss to you of anywhere from $100.00, up

That loss can be very largely stopped by building an inexpensive shed in which to put your machines and give them proper care when not in use.

Remember, that they are in use a very small part of each year and they should be well protected and cared for during their long idleness.

We have spent considerable time in working our practical machine shed designs at different prices

We are sure that one or more of these designs will fit your needs and we are positive it will prove a splendid investment for you, especially now when machines are so high-priced and scarce

Stop this waste and drain on your profits—call and see our machine shed designs at once

They regulate the bowels and stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; cure colic and simple fever; promote healthful sleep and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. Omer Lelien, Madison, Wis., writes: "I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets, and will always use them for my little ones." The Tablets can be obtained by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hun Propagandists

Showers Italians With Transparent Lies to Cause Trouble

A new German propaganda, designed to destroy the Italian people's confidence in the American people, was disclosed in official despatches, saying thousands of copies of German newspapers had been distributed in Italy, carrying a story saying the recent message of President Wilson to Italy was addressed in fact to France and that the Italian government substituted the words "Italy" and "Italian."

Aviators dropped copies of the publications in Italian trenches, but the Italian soldiers, the despatches said, were not deceived, and received them with ridicule.

As an explanation of the propaganda, officials suggest that the Austro-German authorities might be in fear of an Italian offensive.

Influx of Settlers

Land Buyers are Flooding to Southern Alberta

With the completion of seeding operations in the middle and northwestern States, there has been a new influx of land buyers into Southern Alberta, which bids fair to rival that which occurred during the latter part of February and the whole of March. New deals are being put through daily. One of the largest that has been put through recently is a deal of 4,800 acres situated about twenty miles south of Grassy Lake, Alberta, which has been purchased by Idaho buyers for $192,000. Part of this land is already cultivated, and the remainder will be broken this summer ready for crop next year. A firm of land agents, handling irrigated land, claims to have sold half the value of a quarter of a million dollars during the last month.

In the Lettbridge district there will be almost two million acres in crop this year. In 1913 nearly fifty million bushels of grain, mostly wheat, were produced on 1,300,000 acres. It is the hope of every Southern Alberta farmer that this great record will be beaten this year.

All mothers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to give. Its effects are sure and lasting.

Hats Off to Canada

Spirited Answer to the Call of Civilization, Liberty and Enduring Peace

Mr. Root showed his customary perception of the historic significance of events when, at Toronto recently, he said: "We owe to this war, Canada, our own half million of soldiers in France certainly stand at the front of the world when the half million of Canadians who preceded them pass by." The response of Canada to the call of this war was not merely the response of obedience to the British Empire. It was a brave, an instant, a most spirited answer to the call of civilization, liberty and enduring peace of the world which can be traced only to the triumph of right over wrong. Canada did not falter, nor bargain, nor question. She responded with her noblest manhood and the blood which she has struck against a power which has proved to be our enemy quite as much as hers.

Had they their lives holding back the German invader from the free lands. On Vinny-Ridge that advanced guard of Canadians carried the standard, they still stand like a rock. If the United States had answered the great call of this war with the proportion of its man power with which Canada responded, the German armies would have been hurled back beyond the Rhine long ago. Yes—we take off our hats to Canada.—From the Boston Transcript.

How Alberta is Developing

Land in School Districts is Now Under Cultivation

The development of the country around Cairns, Alberta, is characteristic of many parts of this province. Today, says a writer in the Edmonton Bulletin, from a high point in the district, thirteen schools can be seen. In 1910 only one of these schools was built. All the land in these school districts is now under cultivation. At threshing time fourteen threshing outfits have been visible from the same spot, with many more probably working in the area of the landscape panorama but not in plain view. Today a writer would see in this fall in the same territory. In former years much land was stubbled, and the marks of the seeders and furrows shading the stubble of the previous year could be distinguished by the sharp eye of the observer on the hill top. But this year there is little stubbled land noticed. More thorough cultivation has never been observed in this settlement than this year.

His Life Sentence

Bill and Enry had not met for some time, when quite unexpectedly they came across each other in the street. Noticing that his chum was looking downcast, Bill clapped him on the back and said: "Get cheer, Enry? How are you gettin' on? Still workin' for the same people?"

"Yes," was Enry's sad reply. "Wife, mother-in-law and ten kids."

—Answers.

Long Range Gun a Toy

Its Results Laughable Compared to Effects of French Artillery

Killing off a few noncombatants every fifteen minutes during daylight emphatically does not count in the war business. It does not even terrify the noncombatants, and the results will never win the war. What does count is the havoc wrought among the effectives. That is where the German long-range toy guns, that is where the French cannon are most formidable.

Hundreds of letters and entries in diaries found on German prisoners reveal the terror French shells struck in the hearts of fighting men. A German machine gunner, quite recently captured, confided to his notebook: "The assault had to be stopped because of the violent trembling of the French. Very heavy losses in our regiment. At night we were relieved. 'It was time' for all our men were going mad in that witches' caldron."

Another, a very young boy, wrote to his parents: "It is bitter, but I am still so young! What can I do? What use praying, beseeching?"

Lieut. H— of the Eighty-first, states that "all roads are ceaselessly raked by the French artillery. We cannot even buy food. We must prefer starving to going out, for food."

A German battery commander describes the massive effects of the French guns: "The French artillery preparation began. The fire of an entire battery was directed against you like, for corals will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority."

He says that a few drops of a drug called freezeone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out.

This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding tissue.

A small bottle of freezeone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn of callos from one's feet.

If your druggist hasn't stocked this new drug yet, tell him to get a small bottle of freezeone for you from this wholesale drug house.

Economizing on Meat

People are Consuming More Meat Than is Desirable for Health Standpoint

Last year the average consumption of protein in meat, milk, eggs, fowl and cereals in the United States was 80 grams per person per day, more than sufficient. Not only this, but babies, old people, and those who are ill, do not eat their own share, and the poor do not get their share. So some people are eating between 100 and 150 grams per day. All of which means that Americans are consuming 80 grams of protein daily are attempting to dispose of about 35 grams more than we have capacity for. Our kidneys cannot take. They just have to stay until a hundred and one bodily disorders start showing up. We are looking around for some mysterious cause of serious trouble. Then, as a rule, it is too late to apologize and the kidneys. Such people are not patriots, and are not helping to win the war. Why not benefit ourselves and the nation by getting rid of the surplus? As increase the supplies for the armies?

The Pill That Leads Them All—Pills are the most portable and compact of all medicines, and when easy to take are the most effective of all preparations. But they must attest their power to be popular. As Parmenter's Vegetable Pills are fully compounded and composed of ingredients proven to be effective in regulating the digestive organs, there is no surer medicine to be had anywhere.

In the Garden

Some Short Cuts to Success in the Grower of Vegetables

The best way to get lettuce in mid-summer is to grow it in cold frames. Of course no sash will be needed on the frame, but the boards seem to protect the young plants from the hot winds, and they thrive far better than in the open ground.

Huns to Go Barefooted

"Go barefooted this summer and help the husband," is the latest patriotic catchword to be placarded in Germany.

"In view of the alarming scarcity of leather, rich and poor alike should be shod with boots and shoes," says an explanation of the placard in the Rheinische Westfälische Zeitung, of Essen. The old are urged to get an example for the young. "Why not walk on your bare feet this summer?" says the Zeitung. "Neither old nor young need be ashamed to walk barefoot anywhere—at home, in the streets, at school or in church."

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

How to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain

Let folks step on your feet hereafter, when you wear shoes, and you will be free from corns. You will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority.

He says that a few drops of a drug called freezeone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out.

This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding tissue.

A small bottle of freezeone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn of callos from one's feet.

If your druggist hasn't stocked this new drug yet, tell him to get a small bottle of freezeone for you from this wholesale drug house.

A War Child

Representative Ashbury Lever of South Carolina said in a Red Cross appeal in Charleston:

"Food saving will greatly help to win the war. Let us all be as saving of our food as a little girl I know in Newberry."

"Julia," said this little girl's mother the other day, "did you peel your apple before eating it, as I told you to?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Julia.

"And what did you do with the peeling?" said her mother.

"Ate it," said Julia calmly.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A German Admission

The Cologne Gazette, commenting on the Altkantaria bridge over the Suez Canal, says that as a whole Great Britain's campaign in Mesopotamia and Palestine has been far from being a failure. The new bridge joins Africa and Asia and it must be admitted that it facilitates the transport of supplies to Palestine, says the German newspaper.

Machine Shearing and Dipping of Sheep

Demonstration to Farmers in Correct Shearing

With wool at its present high price, and the demand for far more of it than is now available, the proper shearing of sheep, and the promotion of thrift through ridding them of all insect pests is a duty that cannot be neglected. That this fact, together with the fact that a large number of the small sheep owners are neither expert shearers nor particularly fond of the job, is recognized by the Manitoba government is shown by a new line of work which the department of agriculture has commenced, and which will be of great benefit to many sheep owners.

Two experienced shearers are moving about through the province and shearing and dipping the flocks. They go about from place to place as fast as they can be transferred in an automobile, which will also carry the sheep shearing machine and dipping outfit. The shearing and dipping will be done on the owner's farm as far as possible, and the outfit will be able to handle 100 to 200 head of sheep a day, depending on the distance to be travelled between each farm. A charge of 25 cents a head is being made for the work, but hams will be dipped free of charge. Until the work is well under way the outfit is to be accompanied by an official of the live stock branch of the Dominion government.

In addition to performing a useful work, the outfit will also afford a valuable demonstration to farmers in correct shearing and the benefits of dipping. Should the experiment prove a success, and the demand sufficient to warrant increasing the staff and equipment, it is possible that the field of operations will be enlarged next season.

To Help Farmer's Wife

Mr. T. M. Molloy, labor commissioner of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture, speaking recently, stated: "Many of our towns and city women desire to go to the farms and engage in the more spectacular work of driving teams or running a farm. They also desire to have their own farms, and the women of our cities and towns only need to know the extreme seriousness of the situation and they would be glad to volunteer for land and trench work."

Reducing the Cost of City Life

Bringing Down the High Cost of Living by Keeping Milch Goats

Residents of Vancouver, British Columbia, seem to be having some success in bringing down the high cost of living by keeping milch goats. Already a large number of people in this city are keeping goats in the back gardens, and the practice is becoming more popular. It is said that goats thrive exceedingly well in the city. In order that more of the inhabitants may have these animals, the city council has agreed to import a trial shipment of about 200 head from Texas. These are to be sold to residents of the city at a price which will cover expenses. Upon the success of this trial shipment, the council will cover whether others will follow.

Foster, who said that he had escaped notice, felt amused. Long Pete was suspected and therefore judged guilty; the keeper's last argument being, "My field's fair," he resumed. "We'll look if they've gone down the glen, and then take the road if you'll row up the net."

The other man crossed the field and Foster, who lay still until he heard him climb a wall, made for a hole that led into the road. Some what to his surprise he found that he had brought the partridges. He followed the road quickly, keeping in the shadow of a dyke, although he thought the gamekeepers had gone the other way, and on turning a corner came upon the poachers lurking behind a thorn bush.

"We thought that had caught you," the first remarked.

"I suppose you were anxious about it, because you were afraid I might put them on your track."

"I canna say ye're altogether wrong, but what are they for the no?"

"Looking for you in the glen, I believe. But which of you is Long Pete?"

"The man he had met, first said it was his name, and Foster resumed. "Then I imagine you're looking for a gun means to declare that you struck him."

"He would!" Pete remarked grinning. "Weed, it's lucky I have two three friends who'll show that I couldn't have been near the spot just then. But we'll have a try."

"I think I understand," said Foster, who went on with them. "Still, I can't save much time, even if you walk fast."

"Verra true," Pete replied. "But it's no difficult to pick back the clock."

Leaving the road presently, they struck across a bog that got so boggy as they advanced. Foster felt the rotten turf beneath his feet. All around were clumps of moss, patches of smooth, but treacherous moss, and holes where water glistened in the moonlight. He imagined it was a dangerous place for a stranger to cross, but his companions knew the way, and although he sank to the top of his boots they reached firmer ground. Soon afterwards, Pete showed him a rough track that crossed the side of a hill. "You can't your road and you'll see the clachan in about a mile. If they're no vera willing to take ye in, ye can tell them ye're a friend of mine."

Foster thanked him and followed the track, which led him to a hollow where lights shone among a clump of bare ash trees. A few low, white houses straggled along the roadside, and he thought one of the windows was larger and had dormer windows was the chancelhouse. When he knocked he was shown into an untidy kitchen where two men sat drinking by a peat fire. At first, the landlord seemed doubtful about being able to find what Foster wanted, but his manner changed when Foster carelessly mentioned that he understood from Pete that he was welcome, and one of the others gave him a keen glance.

"Where met ye Pete?" he asked.

"On the hill," said Foster, who felt sure of his ground. "I helped him with the net."

"Had he any luck?"

"None much," said Foster. "Two gamekeepers turned up, and although we got a few partridges Pete lost his net."

"There was silence for a moment, and then another man, who would have helped Pete out before, and a change is lightness. He can gang with the Moss-side folk now."

"They let the matter drop, but Foster was given a better supper than he expected, and afterwards led in a cupboard fixed to the kitchen wall."

A Complication

"At noon next day Foster sat smoking on a bridge near the clachan. The air was mild and sunshine filled the hollow, while Foster had just dined upon some very appetizing broth. The broth was thick with vegetables, but he did not think the meat in it came from a barn yard fowl. The clachan was a poor and untidy place, but he was tired, and as the gamekeepers would not suspect a neatly dressed stranger, had thought of stopping another night. When he had finished his meal, Long Pete came up. Foster, who had only seen him in the moonlight, now saw him in the daylight, and he was a tall, thin, and frank brown face and a twinkling smile.

"Ye'll be for Hawick?" he remarked.

Foster said he was going there and Pete resumed in a meaning tone: "The grand day for the road and ye could be in Hawick soon after it's dark."

"He said so," said Foster, who could take a hint. "But is there any reason I should start this afternoon?"

"Ye should ken," was across the muir in the morning, and a policeman from Yarrow at Watty Bell's. He'd come over the hills on his bicycle and was asking if he'd seen a stranger with a glove on his left hand."

"A road gang roving up the waterside, though I wouldn't say it's very good. I'm thinking he made an error, and was asking if he'd seen a stranger with a glove on his left hand."

Foster, who kept at his watch, pondered. He was beginning to understand Scottish talk and saw that Pete meant to give him a friendly warning. It was evident that the policeman would not have set off across the hills in the dark of a winter morning unless he had been ordered to make inquiries. Moreover, since the gamekeepers had mistaken him for a poacher, he had no right to do anything to the poaching.

"Perhaps I had better pull out," he said. "But the fellow won't be long. I'm sure of that. There's a road or a sort of river to Annandale and Lockerbie."

"I'm sure of that. There's a road or a sort of river to Annandale and Lockerbie."

"Weel," said Pete, "ye might start that way, and I would meet ye on the muir, and ye'll see the glen—ye'll ken ye by the broken dyke where ye cross the burn. Then ye'll see ye out the road to Hawick over the hill."

"Thanks," said Foster thoughtfully. "I suppose I ought to let the policeman see the inn sign, and then towards Annandale, so they can tell the policeman."

"The man he had met, first said it was his name, and Foster resumed. "Then I imagine you're looking for a gun means to declare that you struck him."

Allied Fleets Keep Sea Safe

Ralph D. Paine, U. S. Novelist, Says U. S. Naval Men Still Hope for Real Fight

Stories of American, British and French sea fighters in action were told in the Morgan library to a company of guests of J. P. Morgan, including a large number of officers of the three navies, by Ralph D. Paine, the novelist, who has visited the warships under government sanction to prepare a book called "The Fighting Fleet."

"One of the inactivity of the grand fleet," he said, "but the grand fleet is continually active. It is not afraid of submarines; it has gone to sea again and again to answer alarms that the German high seas fleet was coming out, and in every officer and man in the fleet there is confidence that some day they will actually catch the Germans. Mr. Paine told of one of those occasions when the fleet left its base in the north of Scotland between midnight and dawn in response to a message that the Germans were abroad. They came through a channel, he said, "which navigators had believed before the war could not be traversed at night; but in the war all the fleets have learned to do the impossible. On this occasion the fleet arrived American battleships had received the place of honor in the line, just behind the last British flagship. The fleet circled twenty hours. The American sailors in Irish land, he said, that while a very small percentage of them were of Irish blood had gone over with a sentimental sympathy for the Germans. This had vanished because of the treatment accorded them by the popular press. From the pulpit of Cork Cathedral," he said, "the American sailors were denounced as vultures who had come to corrupt the young men and debauch the young women."

"They were attacked, jeered and every where they found the streets full of young Irishmen who refused to volunteer, who marched in parades with the British and defied England to conscript them. It was due only to the strong discipline maintained that there was no serious disturbance, for the American sailors more than once attempted to obtain leave in large numbers to go over to Cork and even with their enemies. The behavior of American sailors has been excellent; 5,000 men from the battle ships went ashore for the Christmas holidays at Edinburgh and only three were brought back drunk."

The Earning Power of Land

Interest Charges Soon Become a Serious Burden on Production

Land, like money and labor, is worth what it will earn, or rather it is worth the profit on what can be earned from it by the application of capital and labor.

Russia Revives Slavery

Terrible Indictment Against the Bolsheviki Government

Utter demoralization marks the path of the Russian revolution, and today many sincere radicals who once were enthusiastic revolutionaries are sighing a little regretfully for the days that are no more. We would be unable to credit some of the reports coming out of Russia, if we found them in the reactionary press, but the latest and most terrible indictment against the Bolsheviki government—or absence of government—is from the pen of that indubitably socialist, Maxim Gorky, in his organ, the Petrograd Novaya Zhizn. He writes:

"All observers of the village today are unanimous in the opinion that the process of disintegration and demoralization is proceeding there with the estates of the landowners, having shared out among themselves, or simply destroyed the dead and living stocks on the estates, having even taken to pieces the buildings, the peasants are now preparing for war against the Bolsheviki. The revolution is the spoil. To this is added the calamity of famine. In some districts the famine has long ago consumed all the available stocks of grain, including seed corn; while in other good harvests, having had a good harvest, the Bolsheviki have even burning it in order not to share it with their starving neighbors. All this has led, and in some places has already led, to a war of all against all, and to the most senseless chaos and universal destruction and murder."

Human beings, we are told, are how bought and sold and the price has dropped from $25 to $15. The Norway Zhim proceeds:

"Information is constantly arriving of the division of military property among the demobilized soldiers and of various outrages committed by them. Monstrous rumors are circulating about the return of retreating from Asia Minor. It appears that it has brought into the Crimea, but even before the revolution, and that at Theodosia a regular slave market is being held, the supplies so large that prices of slaves run from 100 or 150 rubles to 25 or 30 rubles per slave."

"Can any contrast be more striking than to go over to Cork and even with their enemies. The behavior of American sailors has been excellent; 5,000 men from the battle ships went ashore for the Christmas holidays at Edinburgh and only three were brought back drunk."

The Earning Power of Land

Interest Charges Soon Become a Serious Burden on Production

Land, like money and labor, is worth what it will earn, or rather it is worth the profit on what can be earned from it by the application of capital and labor.

"Weel," said Pete, "ye might start that way, and I would meet ye on the muir, and ye'll see the glen—ye'll ken ye by the broken dyke where ye cross the burn. Then ye'll see ye out the road to Hawick over the hill."

"Thanks," said Foster thoughtfully. "I suppose I ought to let the policeman see the inn sign, and then towards Annandale, so they can tell the policeman."

"The man he had met, first said it was his name, and Foster resumed. "Then I imagine you're looking for a gun means to declare that you struck him."

"He would!" Pete remarked grinning. "Weed, it's lucky I have two three friends who'll show that I couldn't have been near the spot just then. But we'll have a try."

"I think I understand," said Foster, who went on with them. "Still, I can't save much time, even if you walk fast."

"Verra true," Pete replied. "But it's no difficult to pick back the clock."

Leaving the road presently, they struck across a bog that got so boggy as they advanced. Foster felt the rotten turf beneath his feet. All around were clumps of moss, patches of smooth, but treacherous moss, and holes where water glistened in the moonlight. He imagined it was a dangerous place for a stranger to cross, but his companions knew the way, and although he sank to the top of his boots they reached firmer ground. Soon afterwards, Pete showed him a rough track that crossed the side of a hill. "You can't your road and you'll see the clachan in about a mile. If they're no vera willing to take ye in, ye can tell them ye're a friend of mine."

Foster thanked him and followed the track, which led him to a hollow where lights shone among a clump of bare ash trees. A few low, white houses straggled along the roadside, and he thought one of the windows was larger and had dormer windows was the chancelhouse. When he knocked he was shown into an untidy kitchen where two men sat drinking by a peat fire. At first, the landlord seemed doubtful about being able to find what Foster wanted, but his manner changed when Foster carelessly mentioned that he understood from Pete that he was welcome, and one of the others gave him a keen glance.

"Where met ye Pete?" he asked.

"On the hill," said Foster, who felt sure of his ground. "I helped him with the net."

"Had he any luck?"

"None much," said Foster. "Two gamekeepers turned up, and although we got a few partridges Pete lost his net."

"There was silence for a moment, and then another man, who would have helped Pete out before, and a change is lightness. He can gang with the Moss-side folk now."

"XII

A Complication

"At noon next day Foster sat smoking on a bridge near the clachan. The air was mild and sunshine filled the hollow, while Foster had just dined upon some very appetizing broth. The broth was thick with vegetables, but he did not think the meat in it came from a barn yard fowl. The clachan was a poor and untidy place, but he was tired, and as the gamekeepers would not suspect a neatly dressed stranger, had thought of stopping another night. When he had finished his meal, Long Pete came up. Foster, who had only seen him in the moonlight, now saw him in the daylight, and he was a tall, thin, and frank brown face and a twinkling smile.

"Ye'll be for Hawick?" he remarked.

"He said so," said Foster, who could take a hint. "But is there any reason I should start this afternoon?"

"Ye should ken," was across the muir in the morning, and a policeman from Yarrow at Watty Bell's. He'd come over the hills on his bicycle and was asking if he'd seen a stranger with a glove on his left hand."

"A road gang roving up the waterside, though I wouldn't say it's very good. I'm thinking he made an error, and was asking if he'd seen a stranger with a glove on his left hand."

"Weel," said Pete, "ye might start that way, and I would meet ye on the muir, and ye'll see the glen—ye'll ken ye by the broken dyke where ye cross the burn. Then ye'll see ye out the road to Hawick over the hill."

"Thanks," said Foster thoughtfully. "I suppose I ought to let the policeman see the inn sign, and then towards Annandale, so they can tell the policeman."

Capt. Persius Gives Up

Not So Sure About the Ultimate Victory of the Germans

Captain Persius, the German naval critic whose defense of U-boat warfare and confidence in its success have made him famous throughout the world, is in a desponding humor and almost ready to surrender.

In an article contributed recently to the Berliner Tageblatt, he discusses at length the submarine campaign, juggling with figures of German manufacture and vainly attempting to discover some basis upon which to build hope for victory.

Twist them how he may, he is unsuccessful in extracting "encouragement" from the numbers. He suggests that the "next few months will be a critical period for England," but even his optimism is a reflection is immediately diluted by a word of disheartening caution. "The hope that this will force England to the conclusion of peace is not at all justified," he declares.

Such gloom is surely disloyal. What of the great Hindenburg's victories on the west front? Have they no cheering impulse for the captain? Apparently not. "No one can force to see how the war will ultimately turn out," he ejaculates. This is less dramatic than the "All Highest" which pervades Persius. He proposes ending the war; confessing that it is a drawn battle.

The fact is that not only is the faith of Persius falling, but the hate—that stimulating tonic—is also oozing out of him. He has been reading Prince Lichnowski's revelations and von Jagow's reply, and he has reached the desolating conclusion that England does not bear the guilt for the war as hitherto has been thought in wide circles of our people.

"der tag" is gone; the motive for fighting evaporated.

"We wonder if Persius in his own mind has thought a little farther—so far as to answer the question, 'Who shall provide for the feeding of the private households as well as by hotels, restaurants and other public eating places. Arrangements have been recently completed with the milling companies, now that the country is being freed from this country, which will provide for the feeding of at least 20,000 bushels of corn daily. At the present time Canadian mills are producing corn to the extent of 10,000 bushels per day. As a result of the arrangements made by the house of lords, corn meal and corn flour is now keeping pace with the demand by the public for substitutes for wheat."

But if you lived in the city and paid a top price for eggs, and then paid to break each one in a separate dish before using them for fear a bad one would spoil the others, you would sympathize with the user and take more care whether you got any money out of it or not—Earl Rogers in National Standard.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Military Service Act, 1917.

Men 19 and 20 Years of Age.

Harvest Leave.

Leave of Absence on Ground of Extreme Hardship.
 Procedure to obtain Leave of Absence.

Men Nineteen and Twenty Years of Age.

It has come to the attention of the Government that there is a widespread impression that young men of nineteen years, and those who became twenty since October 13, 1917, as well as those who may become nineteen from time to time and who have been or will be called upon to register under the Military Service Act, are to be immediately called to the colours.

This impression is quite incorrect. No date has yet been fixed for calling upon such men to so report for duty, nor has the question been brought before the Cabinet for decision. In view of the need of labour on the farm, it is most unlikely that consideration will be given to the matter until after the harvest is over, although of course the Government's action must be determined primarily by the military situation.

There is no further obligation incumbent upon young men of the ages above mentioned who have registered or who do so hereafter, until they receive notice from the Registrars.

Harvest Leave.

Some enquiries have been received as to the possibility of granting harvest leave to such troops as may be in the country at that time. No definite assurance can be given on this point as advantage must be taken of ships as they become available. On the other hand, harvest leave will be given if at all possible.

Leave of Absence on Grounds of Extreme Hardship.

It is desired that the Regulations respecting leave of absence in cases of hardship should be widely known and fully understood. Such leave will be granted in two cases:—(a) where extreme hardship arises by reason of the fact that the man concerned is either the only son capable of earning a livelihood, of a father killed or disabled on service or presently in service overseas, or in training for such service, or under treatment after returning from overseas; or the only remaining of two or more brothers capable of earning a livelihood (the other brother or brothers having been killed or disabled on service, or being presently in service overseas, or in training for overseas or under treatment after his or their return from overseas); brothers married before 4th August, 1914, living in separate establishments and having a child or children not to be counted, in determining the fact that the man is the "only" remaining son or brother; (b) where extreme hardship arises by reason of exceptional circumstances such as the fact that the man concerned is the sole support of a widowed mother, an invalid father or other helpless dependents.

It is to be noted that in all these cases the governing factor is not hardship, loss or suffering to the individual concerned, but to others, that is, members of his family or those depending upon him.

Procedure to obtain leave of absence.

A simple system for dealing with these cases has been adopted. Forms of application have been supplied to every Depot Battalion and an officer of each battalion has been detailed whose duty it is to give them immediate attention. The man concerned should on reporting to his unit state that he desires to apply for leave of absence on one or more of the grounds mentioned and his application form will then be filled out and forwarded to Militia Headquarters, Ottawa. In the meantime, if the case appears meritorious, the man will be given provisional leave of absence for thirty days so that he may return home and continue his civil occupation while his case is being finally disposed of.

ISSUED BY DEPARTMENT OF MILITIA AND DEFENCE, DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

From the standpoint of dollar for dollar value there's not a car made which offers more for your money than the famous Chevrolet Four-Ninety A.

Before the Chevrolet was made in Canada, good cars were all high in price.

But our untiring production and manufacturing efficiency enabled us to sell the Chevrolet Four-Ninety A at a price much lower than its value when compared with other makes of cars.

With the surplus power developed by the famous valve-in-head motor the owner of a Four-Ninety A invariably is the "trail blazer."

Standard equipment includes speedometer, electric starting and lighting equipment, oil indicator light equipment, one man top, detachable steering wheel, live on rear wheels and many features usually looked for in cars much higher in price.

SHOES

With the high cost of labor and leather and the scarcity of skilled labor many of the manufacturers have sacrificed the quality of the shoe for the sake of lowering the price.

We are still handling the Hartt, Slater, Sterling, and Amherst Shoes, and we assure you that these manufacturers have been careful to keep their shoes up to the same high standard as they did before the war.

Hartt and Slater Shoes are recognised as the best procurable in the shoe business. These come in a fine gummetal in either lace or button, and are still sold here at the old price at $8.50, although some merchants are getting as high as $10 for the same lines.

Sterling Shoes We have these in a fine line at $6.00 to $7.50. They may not be as perfect a shoe as the Hartt or Slater, but are splendid value, and have the wearing qualities. Also have these in the heavier line at $5.50 to $5.90, and anything marked Sterling is made of solid leather, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Amherst This line is so well known that it needs no introduction. Its selling points are based on the solid leather soles, solid heels solid corners, seams all wax sewn, double toe cap and the highest quality of workmanship. We have a cut shoe on the counter showing these points. A look at this shoe will convince you of the Amherst wearing qualities.

Army Shoe Have you seen this line? It comes in tan calf, heavy soles, plain toe and a fine fitting last, and just the same as some of us will be wearing shortly. Better get used to them. $7.50

Polishes All kinds Liquid or Paste—white, black, oxblood or tan. Have also the black and tan waterproof oils at 20c per tin.

We will be pleased to show you the above lines

"Service" is the inside of business. "Service" means more than anything else in a business house; the better the service the greater the business.

In our estimation "Service" means—"Everything that a customer reasonably has a right to expect when he sends an order." It means that we have got to treat his order right every inch of the way. "Service" means the winning of confidence by truthful advertising; the expeditious yet painstaking attention to even the minutest wants of the customer; the delivery of goods in the least possible time and in the best possible condition.

Chinook Breezes

Norman Kerry is visiting friends at Empress.

Chinook was well represented at the Little Gem picnic to-day.

If Old Sol would give us some of the present weather about Xmas, it would be more appreciated.

Mrs. Woodruff and family returned home last week end from a months visit with her mother at Sparling, Man.

F. Lake and family are home from their two weeks' vacation at Buffalo Lake. They report a very enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Oxley enjoyed a weeks' trip to Cardston and the South country, returning home this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Peck and son Lloyd returned home this week from a two weeks' delightful motor trip to Calgary, Banff and other points.

Mrs. Mitchell, of Cappon, accompanied by her brother and sister-in-law Dr. and Mrs. Robertson of Hamilton, Ont. and Miss Mitchell, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Yake.

The evangelistic services at Collholme were well attended and much good has been accomplished, and the church quicken, and the fruits of which are widespread.

With another good rain many of our farmers are going to be very agreeably surprised with their crop.

Since the above was in type, the needful rain has come.

Quite a number of auto loads, went from Chinook on Wednesday evening to Youngstown to witness the girls' baseball team of Cereal and Youngstown plays. The home team won by a narrow margin.

The prize list for the Chinook Agricultural Society's fair are out. If any one is missed, kindly call or drop a line to the Secretary, Miss Mary E. Rogers, Chinook, or to this office. Third prizes are given in every class this year.

Miss Glennie, who has been in Chinook the past year or two left this week for a visit with her sister at Burnett, Minn., U. S. By, a strange co-incidence, Burnett is about 60 miles from the home of our friend McLeod. Funny, isn't it?

A quiet wedding took place in Calgary on Saturday last, July 13th, the contracting parties being Miss Margaret Macdonald late teacher at the Laughlin school, and Mr. Horace Dunster of Collholme. Their many friends wish them every happiness and prosperity.

Speaking of the dry weather and the great need of rain, a farmer remarked to a neighbor, in Chinook to-day, "The Lord isn't with us now, anyway" The farmer didn't know it, but the "small cloud, no bigger than a man's hand," was already in the sky, and the heavens opened and gave us a bounteous outpouring of rain. Taking the words of the farmer, which were perhaps lightly spoken, "How many of us are with the Lord?"

Found, a whip, a logging chain and a shovel. Owners can have same by paying for this advt. on application to W H Davis, Collholme

C. R. Brownell and family, and some others, motored to the Medicine Hat Stampede, starting to-day.
